

Letter to the Guardian

The Guardian (Manchester); Jan 28, 2004; Peter Allies; p. 27

Full Text:

(Copyright, Guardian Newspapers Limited, Jan 28, 2004)

* So Bill Gates is to get a knighthood due to Gordon Brown's wish to encourage entrepreneurs (Report, January 26). The man who really deserves a knighthood is Allan Jones of Woking (Ray of hope, January 26), for pushing through his plan for clean, renewable energy for the town in spite of the DTI's attitude of protecting large energy producers. He should be given the job of persuading other towns to follow suit. It's the small people you want to encourage, Gordon, not the big ones!

Peter Allies

Framingham Earl, Norwich